The Stranger

Thomas Moore Esq

Come List while I tell of the heart "Wonder stranger" while sleeps her last slumber in this hallowed ground where often at midnight, the lonely wailing hours soft fair-my mu-sic re-echo a-round: Where oft-en, at midnight, the lone-ly wailing Hours soft fair-my mu-sic re-echo a-round, None ever knew the of that heart-stricken la-ry, Her language, though sweet, none could e'er un-der-stand; But her fa-tures, so sun-d, and her eye-lash, so shady Be-spoke her child of some far Eastern land: Her feet so sund, and her eye-lash, so shady Be-spoke her a child of some far Eastern land.

Twas one summer night, When the village lay sleeping & soft strains of melody come o'er our song; So sweet, but so mournful, half song and half weeping, like music that sorrow had steep'd in her tears. We thought, 'twas an anthem some angel had sung us; But soon as the day-beams had quitted furor on high, With wonder we saw this bright stranger among us, so lovely and lone, as if brought from the sky.

Long long, Did her life for this sphere seem intended; for pale was her cheek, like that of = here, which comes when the story of this world is nigh ended; One light from another whereby shines through her eyes, When she sang - oh! but once to have seen them Left thoughts in the soul that can never depart.
While her looks and her voice made a language between them, that spoke more than holiest words to the heart.

But she pass'd like a Day-dream - we that could restore her - whatever was her doom, its ruin came fast; She died with the same spell of mystery o'er her, that long of past days on her lips to the last, nor even in the grave is her sad heart on reposing, - Still bears the spirit of grief round her tomb; for oft, when the shadows of midnight are closing, the same strain of music is heard through the gloom
